

Candidates to Meet Face-to-Face

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy and Robert F. Kennedy, each trying to block the other's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, will meet face-to-face Saturday in a nationally televised debate.

Until he lost to McCarthy Tuesday in the Oregon primary, Kennedy had been ignoring his opponent's daily challenges to join him before the cameras.

Oregon boosted McCarthy's stock at Kennedy's expense and suddenly made it harder to say no to a debate.

The ABC network announced Thursday the pair would meet on a one-hour telecast, entitled "Issues and Answers: A Special Report," originating from KGO-TV in San Francisco.

It will be seen alive across three-fourths of the nation—at 9:30 p.m. in the East, 8:30 p.m. in the Central states and 7:30 p.m. in the Mountain states. In the Western time zone a taped broadcast will be shown at 9:30 p.m.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, as third man in the race for the Democratic nomination, was asked to join in the debate but declined, the network said.

Frank Reynolds, an ABC network newsman, will be moderator, directing questions at first one man and then the other. Questions will also come from two other ABC newsmen, political correspondent Robert Clark and White House correspondent William Lawrence.

Under the ground rules, Kennedy and McCarthy will not engage each other in direct exchanges, but whenever one answers a newsman's question his opponent will have a chance to jump in immediately afterward with comment and criticism of what has just been said.

National tremors are likely but the debate is almost certain to have immediate impact in California, where Kennedy and McCarthy are pitted against one another in Tuesday's state presidential primary.

Kennedy took to the rails Thursday, whistling through the San Joaquin Valley. McCarthy meanwhile campaigned in Watts and said he found nothing in the Black Power concept incompatible with American traditions.

"There's never been any group in America who had any more reason to organize themselves to get their rights," he said at a rally and barbecue in the Negro suburb of Los Angeles.

Humphrey, who is not making the rounds of the primary states with his two rivals, was in Bethesda Naval Hospital today for what his staff described as a routine twice-yearly checkup.

Death Toll Is Mounting Steadily

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The national toll of deaths in traffic mounted steadily today and although Memorial Day itself was past, the majority of the long holiday weekend still lay ahead.

The toll since the four-day weekend began Wednesday evening stood at 154 early today. During a survey of a recent nonholiday weekend of equal length 488 persons died on the nation's streets and highways.

The National Safety Council has estimated that between 625 and 725 Americans may lose their lives in traffic accidents in the period from 6 p.m. Wednesday to midnight Sunday.

"The toll is running behind the same period last year," a council spokesman said. But he pointed out that the 1967 toll of 608—a Memorial Day weekend record—was below even the minimum estimated for this year's holiday period of equal length.

Rain and fog hampered motorists in various parts of the country Thursday. The addition of cool temperatures in many Northern states discouraged outdoor activities on what is generally considered the first holiday of the warm weather months.

As a basis for comparison, The Associated Press made a survey of highway fatalities during a nonholiday weekend from 6 p.m. Wednesday, May 19, to midnight Sunday, May 19. The count came to 488.

"We appeal to everybody to stop this disorder before other mothers and fathers suffer as we are," Mrs. James Groves told a news conference.

Her son, James 14, and Matthias Washington Browder, 19, were shot and killed Wednesday night in what police said were looting incidents.

Browder was shot by the owner of a liquor store, W. J. Berger, who was charged with manslaughter and released later on a $5,000 bond. Groves was killed by Patrolman Charles Noe. No action was taken against the officer.

Some 2,000 National Guardsmen remained on the perimeter of the West End Thursday in accordance with an agreement reached the previous day between Mayor Kenneth A. Schmidt and militant Negroes who agreed to volunteer as marshals and try to keep order themselves, along with city police.

However, Guardsmen accompanied firemen into the West End several times Thursday night as jeering, rock-throwing crowds harassed the firemen. Fire units responded to more than 50 calls by midnight, 20 of them false alarms.

As the flames were extinguished, most Guardsmen returned to the perimeter of the area, although some accompanied police in patrol cars.

Navy Goes Deep Seeking the Scorpion

By STAN DARDEN
Associated Press Writer
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy is now searching in the deep Atlantic for the submarine Scorpion. It has abandoned a search nearer the coast prompted by a radio message purportedly from the missing sub which some officers label a possible cruel hoax.

The Navy ordered 12 ships Thursday to leave patrol assignments near the coast and move seaward. At the same time it released 12 others from further participation in the search.

While a sub on the bottom in the relatively shallow waters of the continental shelf might survive, its hull is not designed to withstand the pressures encountered at greater depths.

While doggedly keeping up the hunt for the lost ship, officers at Atlantic Fleet headquarters reported crank calls were being made to the Scorpion's crew. The callers pose as Navy officers and give the families false information on the conditions of their loved ones, they said.

Some 60 of the Scorpion's men had families in the Norfolk area.

The ships diverted Thursday will sweep eastward from a point 400 miles out of Norfolk to the last known position of the Scorpion, the Navy said.

The Scorpion, a submarine of the Skipjack class with a crew of 99, was scheduled to arrive in Norfolk at about 1 p.m. EDT Monday after a training mission in the Mediterranean. Its last reported position was given on May 21 as about 200 miles south of the Azores.

The Navy said it was abandoning a special search organized when a Navy patrol plane and six ships heard a voice transmission at 8:28 p.m. Wednesday.

The transmission said, "Any station this network: this is the (and then the code word for the Scorpion)."

The nuclear-powered submarine USS Lapon was the only craft to obtain a bearing on the signal, which was heard by the patrol plane when it was about 110 miles east of Norfolk. The Lapon heard the transmission while 300 nautical miles east of Norfolk.

The possibility was raised Thursday that the transmission might have been a hoax or might have originated aboard one of the Navy's own ships in the search area. The Navy said both possibilities are being investigated.

The transmission was beamed on what the Navy said was the "submarine search and rescue primary frequency," but an Atlantic Fleet spokesman said the frequency was within access of ham radio operators on shore and ships at sea.

And the code name of the Scorpion, he noted, had been used extensively throughout the search. Anyone tuning in on the frequency might have heard it.

Peace Talks Speed Up Fighting
By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. North Vietnamese talks in Paris have brought sharper action in the Vietnam war. Like two wrestlers, the two sides grope for holds that will lead to a spectacular throw.

The U.S. Command has predicted a further escalation in fighting and latest allied intelligence seems to bear this out.

U.S. sources have said privately that neither side is likely to score a decisive victory in the near future.

Thus neither can bargain in Paris from a position of absolute strength that would force concessions.

Many in Saigon recall former Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge's recommendation to President Johnson when there were hints that peace talks might start in 1966. Lodge recommended increasing the pressure on the enemy to the maximum should Hanoi or the Viet Cong show real signs of wanting peace.

Even the most minor concession, Lodge urged, should not be agreed to unless a counter concession was won.

Therefore bigger battles, higher casualties—probably the largest of the war on both sides—and claims of decisive victories are forecast. Indications are that each side also will place increasing importance on victory claims, not so much to strengthen the hands of its bargainers in Paris but to convince the world that its side is winning.

The idea, it is believed here, would be to generate pressure from allies and friends on both sides to make concessions that would bring a settlement on the best possible terms.

On the other hand, Hanoi has boasted of huge victories against the allies in the Saigon area during fighting earlier this month. In fact the enemy forces were mostly turned back at the city's slum belt, along its outer limits.

The most likely battle zones of the future probably are around Saigon, below the demilitarized zone and the central highlands. Rocket and infantry attacks around Saigon prove that the enemy command is capable of piercing the U.S. shield around the capital.

sible to understand," Rockefeller said. "Who benefits from such callous and cynical behavior? Certainly not the people of Arkansas."

Rockefeller said he would veto a bill which slipped through on the last day to give $500,000 from his contingency fund to provide increased payments to nursing homes caring for welfare patients.

He said the legislature had transferred more money from the contingency fund than would be available from the fund during the rest of the biennium.

Rockefeller's tax program — a three cent cigarette tax increase, a 15 per cent tax on other tobacco products, a real estate transfer tax — was defeated in the House early in the session.

The Senate vote Thursday was on a joint budget committee bill to increase the cigarette tax two cent a pack and levy a 20 per cent tax on cigars.

The estimated revenue was $4,750,000 a year and the bill proposed to give $1,750,000 to the public schools, $1.5 million to higher education, $1.5 million to welfare for old age benefits and $500,000 to welfare for nursing home payments.

The vote on the bill was 21-14, but it needed 27 to pass. This was the Senate's first chance for full-fledged debate on a tax measure and 15 senators took the floor to argue for or against it.

Both proponents and opponents laid full blame on Rockefeller for creating a situation where consideration of new taxes was necessary.

Proponents argued that the legislature had a responsibility turning into a two-lane road. Evacuating the camp left the enemy with a free hand in the area.

to get the governor out of the hole. Opponents argued that the situation could be resolved in the 1969 regular session.

Speakers on both sides conceded that consideration of a major tax program will be necessary in 1969. Rockefeller echoed this sentiment at his news conference.

"There seems to be no end to the trial except bankruptcy unless we enact meaningful tax increases in the regular session," he said.

Rockefeller said he had no wish to call another special session but that he will do so if the fund transfer bill proves to be unworkable. He said he would not sign the bill but that he might permit it to become law without his signature. If he plans to veto it, he must do so within 20 days.

The governor said he will permit the so-called dog track bill to become law without his signature although he believes it is a bad bill because it gives the Racing Commission extremely broad powers over Southland Racing Corp., which operates a dog track at West Memphis.

The bill was a result of a charge by Sen. Clarence Bell and others that an out-of-state syndicate was about to take over management of Southland.

HELEN HELP US!

DO SALESMEN MARK THE "EASY-MARK" HOUSES?

Dear Helen: During the Depression, hoboes used to mark the houses of "easy hand-outs." I'm beginning to think salesmen and "charity" drive people also mark us generous ones. I seem to get 'em all!

I'm a patsy for a sob story, you see. When a young fellow tells me he's selling candy for the "Youth Betterment League," I buy (about 25 cents worth for a dollar). I've fallen for everything from Braille for Blind Indians to "Save a Veteran." Later I found out from the Better Business Bureau that these phonies were working only for the "betterment" of their own wallets.

But still they come. I've watched salesmen head straight for my house, and bypass at least half the other houses on the block.

Also, it seems I get twice the sales-pitch phone calls that my friends get. Is it possible that door-to-door and phone salesmen exchange information on the easy-marks, so that we get more than our share of their "business"?—CAN'T SAY "NO," BUT LEARNING.

Dear CSNBL: I doubt it, Your less-bothered neighbors may have "No solicitors" signs on their doors, and unlisted phone numbers.

P.S. You're very wise to get the names of all doubtful charities or sales outfits and check them out with the Better Business Bureau. Cheating can't be stopped unless it's reported.—H.

Dear Helen: You recently printed a letter from a young man who said he was afflicted with "the worst scourge of mankind—homosexuality." Thank you for telling him that it wasn't necessarily so—that one experience doesn't mark him for life. Often he is lured into this by an older man who tells him he can never change. So he drifts on, hating himself and punishing himself—sure he isn't fit for a normal relationship.

While there are some who are "born" homosexuals, I'm sure with most, the problem is psychological. I know, for I was one of them. I lived in constant fear and shame, trying to hide my guilt, yet believing I had no choice. My "gay" friend made sure I kept on believing it.

When my mother finally found out, I wanted to die at first. But it was the best thing that ever happened to me. She wouldn't let me give up, found the psychiatric care I needed. It wasn't easy. Sex is a powerful drive, and without her help, I could never have changed.

I'm glad to say that I am now a normal, loving husband and father.—ONCE A FREAK

Dear Helen: Thank you for writing the letter I hoped someone would write! Homosexuals CAN be cured, but only if they leave off the self-loathing and ask for help.

So many men—and women too—tell me they hate their lives but feel doomed because shame won't let them discuss their problem. To those I say: A psychiatrist does not censure; and your families will usually stand by you. Call the mental Health Association in your city and ask for referral to an expert.—H.

Dear Helen: Soon, I hope, the stigma will be gone from homosexuality, so that two consenting adults will not be pilloried by society. Seduction of the young is wrong and should be punished, but when two "different ones" choose of their own free will to live together, it is nobody's business but their own, and they should not be condemned.

My partner and I have been together for 15 years. We have been better citizens than most. We do no one any harm. We are truer than most mixed couples, and we're happy because we are no longer lonely. Our friends accept us. Someday others will too—I hope.—THE TWO

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By Bob Thomas

AP Movie-Television Writer ANAHEIM, Calif., (AP) — The presence of Walt Disney pervades Disneyland, a year and a half after his death.

Everywhere in the $100-million pleasure park, painters are adding new coats to glossy surfaces and landscapers are planting flowers and shrubs to bloom in time for the summer onslaught of tourists. During his 10-year rule of Disneyland, Walt continually inspected the place for signs of wear. "If we keep the park looking good, people will respect it," he reasoned. He abhorred the tawdry appearance of most carnivals and fairs, and he employed an uncommon number of trash men to keep the grounds neat.

"Disneyland is in better condition than it ever has been in its history," says Card Walker, a vice president who has emerged as spokesman for the Disney enterprises since headman Roy declines the spotlight. "Several of us regularly tour the park. That's what Walt used to do every week or 10 days, and it's the only way to check on how things look and operate. If things need fixing, you can find out right on the spot."

Disneyland recently clocked its 70 millionth visitor, and several million more will pass through the gates before schools reopen in the fall. The custom-ers will find the park operating at peak capacity of 70,000 rides an hour, as the result of a three-year, $50-million expansion program.

But even the increased number of rides isn't enough to handle the mobs that pour through the gates on the busiest summer days. Hence the Disneyland management has sought ways to spread the attendance load. This summer the park will open at 8 a.m., an hour earlier than ever before.

The principal method of spreading the crowd is to find the nighttime visitors something to do.

"When Disneyland first opened, we found that the ponderance of visitors came in the daytime," said Walker. "So Walt instituted fireworks and entertainment to make it attractive for some of the customers to arrive at 5 in the afternoon and stay into the evening."

"Out of state tourists and people with young children still come in the daytime, and the attendance peak is at 3 in the afternoon. But now many of the teen-agers enjoy coming on summer Saturdays we can have from 35 to 40 per cent of our attendance after 5 p.m."

To induce the late-comers this summer, Disneyland is plunking out $1.5 million for nighttime entertainers, including Phyllis Diller, Vicki Carr, George Gobel, Flatt and Scruggs and Minnie Pearl.

"Island of Whispers" Sabai, an island between New Guinea and the northern tip of Australia, is known to pearl-ers as the "Island of Whispers." All the natives speak in a low, whispery voice. Strait pearl-ers believe that something in the drinking water affects the vocal cords.

RISING STAR in show business, singer Gloria Loring is a comparative newcomer to the entertainment world. Her story and that of headliner Aretha Franklin will be subject of an upcoming television special.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — One awards ceremony of interest to television viewers is unlikely to get on camera: The presentation for commercials that recently won for their makers "Clio," the advertising agencies' equivalent of the motion picture's Oscar.

Messages from the sponsor do, after all, occupy the television screen at least one-sixth of all air time. Most viewers react more violently to commercials they dislike than to shows they don't like. They can skip the show, but must just suffer through a minute commercial.

A half-hour roundup of the season's award-winning commercials would be interesting. But since the major networks are in fierce competition for sponsors and since air time is purchased at great cost, it is highly unlikely such a program will ever make the channels.

At the "Clio" award ceremonies of the American Television and Radio Commercials Festival last week, about 60 statuettes were passed out. But since a commercial must be seen or heard to identify, most of them, the daytime," said Walker. "So Walt instituted fireworks and entertainment to make it attractive for some of the customers to arrive at 5 in the afternoon and stay into the evening."

This viewer recognized from titles and brief descriptions a few of the top awards winners. One was that series of bitterly funny case histories of the build-up of king-size headaches. Another was the cartoon commercial showing a nagging dialogue between a man and his unhappy stomach. A third was the series of tongue-in-cheek dramas plugging pitted prunes.

Meanwhile, the television code committee of the National Association of Broadcasters has recommended that certain restrictions on advertising products for personal use be relaxed and that instead of banning the bel, Flatt and Scruggs and Minnie Pearl.

Involved specifically is advertising about two hemorrhoidal preparations and one personal hygiene product. The recommendations will be acted upon by the NAB board in mid-June. The industry code currently bars advertising of "particularly intimate products which ordinarily are not freely mentioned or discussed."

Life In Arkansas

BY TOMMY YATES

Associated Press Writer John Ward of Little Rock donned the traditional cap and gown and accepted his college diploma last Tuesday at Little Rock University complete his quest for a college degree that began 19 years ago.

Ward, 37 now, first entered college in 1949 at Arkansas State Teachers College (now State College of Arkansas) at Conway, where he graduated from high school that spring.

He worked his way through his first years of college as a linotype operator and reporter at the Conway Log Cabin Democrat until it was time to begin his practice teaching.

"I couldn't quite work in order to practice teach so I dropped out for what I thought was just temporarily," Ward said. "Then I got married and just never went back."

Before he married Betty Chandler of Little Rock in 1957, he played the sax and clarinet with a variety of combos that toured the United States and Canada.

He worked as a reporter for the Arkansas Democrat for about five years until May 1964 and he is now director of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's public relations department.

While he was at the Democrat, however, he had his transcript transferred to LRU in 1963 and began going to night classes.

Ward said getting a degree the way he did is "not as easy as going four straight years, but it's not bad."

"In fact, I'll probably continue going to school," he said. "I find it stimulating and refreshing."

"If I lived in a community where they offer a masters degree, I would go ahead and get it," he said. He received his B.S. in social studies. "I've been accused of being a professional student, but I take it as a compliment," Ward said. "I've enjoyed my life very much during these years. I've felt a little embarrassed at times, but I got over that and began enjoying mixing it up with the students."

Ward credited Joe McGee, editor of the Conway newspaper, with stimulating his desire to complete his education. "Joe always encouraged me to go ahead and finish up my school," he said. "He said I would always regret it, and he's probably right."

Ford Won't Back Any Candidate

DETROIT (AP) — Henry Ford II, board chairman of Ford Motor Co., said Thursday he was not backing the presidential nomination candidacy of a fellow who was his overnight guest Tuesday night—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York. At the company's stockholders' meeting, newsmen asked Ford: are you backing Rockefeller?

"No, I'm not," Ford said. Did you discuss backing him with you when he was at your house?

"No, I didn't," he replied.

Turbine Now Looking Like Gym Fighter

Associated Press Sports
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The heralded turbine racer is beginning to look like a gymnasium fighter on the Indianapolis Speedway.

Either the flaming-red swooshmobile conceived by Andy Granatelli leaves its reputation on the practice track, or the Indy 500 should be trimmed to 450 miles for hard-luck Andy.

Thursday, for the second straight year, a turbine fizzled with victory only nine laps away from pole-sitter Joe Leonard, who watched Bobby Unser whip past him for a record-breaking triumph in a turbocharged Offenhauser.

In 1967, Parnelli Jones had Granatelli's controversial pioneer turbine conk out 7½ miles from victory in its debut at Indy.

Actually, the supposedly antiquated piston-engined contingent Thursday struck out all three turbine entries, which were supposed to swish to a 1-2-3 sweep in the $750,000 motor classic.

Graham Hill, 1966 Indy champion and former world road racing titlist from London, banged into a wall in his turbine while losing a wheel after 111 of the 200 laps.

The third turbine, driven by Art Pollard, quit after 192 laps. Granatelli, who plotted the airplane-engine power plant for the sleek chassis devised by England's Colin Chapman, blamed a horsepower reduction from the trial runs for the turbine's triple tumble.

Railbirds guessed that a fuel switch from kerosene to gasoline after Granatelli was forced to reduce his power plant from 1967 by the U.S. Auto Club triggered the turbine flop.

The kerosene supposedly has lubricating qualities to keep the fuel system functioning smoothly. On the other hand, gasoline is said to have a washing effect, tending to remove lubrication from moving parts.

Leonard, former four-time national motorcycle champion, said of his embarrassing stall: "It was just as if I had turned off the key. It just stopped. Just like that. No warning at all. It just went clunk."

Pollard, whose machine died when he tried to accelerate after a yellow caution light slowed late in the race, said he noticed a power falloff after 150 miles.

Hill said, before his crash, his turbine "just didn't seem to have the power. I was a bit disappointed with my car. It wasn't going anywhere nearly as quickly as it had been going in practice."

Granatelli commented philosophically: "Apparently I have bad luck. It's obvious. The drivers don't deserve this kind of luck. Joe drove a great race, a great race."

"Anyway, they haven't got any reason for banning us next year,"

Travs Explode for Three in Beating Spurs

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Travelers exploded for three runs in the first inning and went on to defeat the Dallas-Fort Worth Spurs 6-2 Thursday night in a Texas League game.

Arkansas battered four Spur pitchers for 10 hits. Starter Luis Penalver, who pitched a no-hitter last Sunday, was the loser for the Spurs.

Andy Martin, who yielded a home run in the sixth inning to Dan Walton, was the winner for the Travelers. Martin surrendered eight hits.

A walk, a single and a double by Lee gave Arkansas one run. John Slinn followed with a single, knocking in two more runs in the Travelers' big first inning.

Slinn batted in two more runs with a single in the third inning.

At Memphis Thursday night, Shreveport rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to clip Memphis 5-3. The loss was the 10th in their last 12 outings for the Blues, who dropped to third place in the league's Eastern Division. Memphis had taken a 3-2 lead on Dave Smith's two-run homer in the fifth inning.

In other league games Thursday, Albuquerque outscored San Antonio 9-8 and El Paso nipped Amarillo 5-4.

Baseball Attendance Declines

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Baseball attendance was down in both the National and American Leagues for Memorial Day attractions.

A total of 187,714 fans saw games across the country with the largest crowd at New York where 28,197 watched the Yankees split a holiday doubleheader with Washington.

Last year seven doubleheaders helped attract 285,918 fans. This year there were only two twinbills—the one at New York and a novel morning doubleheader at Pittsburgh between the Pirates and New York Mets which attracted 19,779.

The common rat is considered the most important four-legged foe of modern man.

Mantle Has Good Day Yank Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Memorial Day against Washington usually gives Mickey Mantle something to remember. Most any day against Oakland gives the Boston Red Sox something to forget.

The mighty Mickey, last of the New York Yankee superstars, enjoyed one of the most productive days of his illustrious career Thursday. He whacked two home runs, a double and two singles and drove in five runs as the Yankees walloped Washington 13-4 in the opener of a doubleheader. The Senators bounced back to take the nightcap 6-2.

Exactly 12 years earlier—Memorial Day, 1956—Mantle slammed a pitch from Washington's Pedro Ramos off the facade of the Yankee Stadium roof. It missed by only a few feet of being the first fair ball ever hit out of the big Bronx ballpark, a still unaccomplished feat.

While Mantle was slugging, the defending American League champion Red Sox were slumping. The upstart Oakland A's shelled them 6-2 behind Lew Krausse's four-hitter and pulled into a fifth-place tie with the Sox and Yankees. Oakland has beaten Boston six of seven this season.

Elsewhere, Detroit whipped California 7-3. Baltimore blanked the Chicago White Sox 5-0 and Cleveland nipped Minnesota 3-1.

In the National League, St. Louis defeated San Francisco 6-0. Houston bombed Atlanta 11-0. Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 5-3 and the New York Mets swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 6-3 and 5-4. The Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia were rained out.

Mantle began his big day with a two-run homer in the first inning. He singled and scored in the third, homered again in the fifth, doubled home a run in the sixth and singled in another in the eighth. The homers were his fifth and sixth of the season and gave him a career total of 524, 10 behind Jimmy Fox, No. 3 on the all-time list.

The aging Mickey sat out Thursday's nightcap as Camilo Pascual and Darold Knowles mowed down the Yanks with homer help from Fred Valentine, Ed Stroud and Bernie Allen.

Krausse not only won for the first time in his home park after four defeats but hit a key two-run double in the second inning. The A's pounded 13 hits, including Sal Bando's third homer as the Red Sox absorbed their fifth loss in the last six games.

Jim Northrup drove in three runs with a homer, single and sacrifice fly to pace Detroit's triumph over California. Bill Freehan also had a homer and run-scoring single as the first-place Tigers maintained their 1½-game lead over Baltimore.

The Orioles kept pace as Dave Leonard fired a two-hitter at the White Sox, who have lost seven of their last eight games. Baltimore, which has won seven of eight, scored three times in the third inning off Bob Priddy on one hit and five walks.

Cleveland jumped back into third place by a half-game over Minnesota.

Unser Beats Turbos at Speedway

Associated Press Sports
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Bobby Unser had a big grin on his face and an undetermined amount of prize money in sight as he discussed his victory—and the failure of the second consecutive year of the imposing turbines—in the Memorial Day 500-mile auto race.

"I couldn't believe it," said Unser, who whipped his turbocharged Offenhauser across the finish line in front after the three powerful turbine racers entered by Andy Granatelli had faltered and failed—one with only 9 laps to go. The turbines included the leading qualifiers and the race leader for 32 laps.

"I feel they missed the best chance they had in their lives," Unser said. "I said before the race if Granatelli didn't win this one he ought to pack up and go home. The best I can figure, the good Lord just didn't want them to win."

Unser's prize money will be announced tonight at the traditional victory dinner.

It depended on attendance, cut by prolonged rain that made the infield a quagmire, and on the accessories Bobby carried on his American Eagle and its engine.

Fans, meanwhile, to whom the $750,000-or-so purse has only an academic interest, marveled at how close Thursday's script came to following that of 1967, and how true it is that a race driver who won't be beaten often isn't.

The 34-year-old Unser, who has had two racing brothers, a racing father and two racing uncles, simply charged until his strongest competitors—notably the favored Lotus turbines—fell apart. He has done that—beating whoever faced him—in four straight U.S. Auto Club championship races.

The stick for his own low gear failed, costing him precious seconds on the three compulsory pit stops. He saw his brother Al crash in the southwest turn, noted he was apparently unhurt, and continued charging.

These Unser boys were running on the track where their brother Jerry was killed in 1959. They also lost an uncle in a stock car test run.

Bobby, winning for the first time, led three times in the race but appeared hopelessly behind Lotus turbine driver Joe Leonard with the end almost in sight. Then, with 20 miles to go, Leonard's turbine died and he coasted off the track, just as Parnelli Jones did last year in the original turbine with 7½ miles to go.

S. A. Silbermann, head of the speedway technical committee, said the Pratt & Whitney turbines have a governor which shuts off the engine if the throttle is advanced too quickly. Leonard's trouble came when he got the green light after a minor accident had slowed the pace.

"I thought I had the race won when I got the green," Leonard said. "Then, it happened. As the green flag came out, my car went out—just died out on me, like a flameout."

A national organization of race writers and broadcasters had picked the three turbines to finish one-two-three. They were driven by Graham Hill of London, Leonard, of San Jose, Calif., and Art Pollard of Medford, Ore.

Hill, the 1966 winner, never led and crashed after 111 of the 200 laps after losing a wheel. Pollard's turbine quit after 188 laps. The technical committee called it a gear box failure.

Nobody was hurt in the race, which brought sunshine for the first time in eight days. The lead changed eight times in furious competition.

Leaders were Leonard, first seven laps; Bobby Unser, laps 8-56; Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., 57-89; B. Unser, 90-112; Leonard, 113-119; B. Unser, 120-165; Ruby, 166-174; Leonard, 175-191, and B. Unser, 192-200.

As the turbines crashed or fled, turbocharged Offenhausers, perfected only this year, powered nine of the 11 cars which were still running when Bobby Unser crossed the finish line.

It was a great day for Granatelli racer and All American Eagle auto builder Dan Gurney, who set a 152.882 m.p.h. in an Eagle and Gurney followed him across the line in second place.

World road racing champion Denis Hulme of New Zealand finished fourth in another Eagle behind Mel Kenyon of Lebanon, Ind., who had a Gerhardt-Offy. Unofficially, others running at the finish were Ruby, fifth; Ronnie Duman, Indianapolis,

Feud Over Engines Has Not Subsided

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The noisy victory of Bobby Unser's piston-pounding Offy racer has done nothing to silence the 500-mile feud over the colorful and controversial turbines.

Unser won the 1968 war of automobile vs. aircraft engines Thursday, driving to victory in the Indianapolis 500-mile race when leader Joe Leonard stalled his jet-powered turbine in the last nine laps.

But Unser insisted the turbines were powerful enough to have run away with the race whenever they wished. He renewed the year-long argument that the jets should be grounded in the rich Memorial Day classic.

"I think this is a race for automotive vehicles," Unser said. "You should put the turbines in a class all by themselves and let them run their own race on some other day."

The crowd of 250,000 expected the flaming red jet cars to run their own race Thursday all by themselves at the head of the 500-mile field. But Unser astounded all.

The 34-year-old Albuquerque, N.M., driver swept past pacesetter Leonard on the eighth lap. He led in 127 of the 200 laps around the 2½-mile oval.

But Unser argued, "I really feel the turbines should have run away with the race. I think I was lucky to win. Leonard could have out run me any time."

He suggested the turbines were running at less than full speed to avoid the strain that sidelined apparent winner Parnelli Jones only three laps from victory a year ago, the first year a turbine was entered. Unser said the turbine strategy was aimed evidently at wearing out the other cars—and it almost succeeded.

Unser's gearshift lever broke early in the race and he had to crawl out of the pit area twice in high gear, the weakest in acceleration among his four gears. The last time he came limping out, Leonard pulled ahead with 85 miles to go and looked more like a winner with each passing lap.

Unser said, "I feel the turbines missed the best chance they had in their lives. If they ever had an advantage, it was today."

Cards Score Six Runs to Beat Giants

Associated Press Sports
National League baseball consumed 12 hours, 52 minutes on Memorial Day from the time the first pitch was thrown at Pittsburgh until the last out was recorded at St. Louis.

In between, some interesting things happened.

—Like the St. Louis Cardinals scoring six runs—their highest total in three weeks.

—Like the New York Mets sweeping a doubleheader.

—Like Bob Aspromonte driving in two runs on a force out.

—Like Ed Kranepool driving in two runs.

The Cards, locked in a hitting slump that dumped them to fourth place with 11 losses in 13 games, woke up with a 6-0 victory over San Francisco. Houston battered Atlanta 11-0, New York swept a twinbill that started in mid-morning from Pittsburgh 6-3 and 5-1, and Los Angeles dropped Cincinnati 5-3. Chicago's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

In the American League, Cleveland dropped Minnesota 3-1, Oakland whipped Boston 6-2, Detroit defeated California 7-3, Baltimore shut out Chicago 5-0 and New York split a doubleheader with Washington, winning 13-4 before losing 5-2.

Thirteen doubleheaders had come and gone since the Mets last swept one. But the ingredients were right Thursday.

First, the opponents were the Pirates, victims of the last Met sweep back in August, 1967. Then there was the bizarre 10:30 a.m. starting time. And then, perhaps most startling, there was Kranepool driving in two runs.

Kranepool had been up 95 times without an RBI this season. The Pirates were so confident they could handle Ed that they walked rookie Kevin Collins intentionally, loading the bases in the third inning of the first game.

But Kranepool singled for two runs and New York was on its way to the victory—eighth in 10 decisions for rookie Jerry Koosman.

The Mets completed the sweep for Dick Selma's fourth consecutive victory. New York scored all its runs with two out in the fifth inning—a rally started, appropriately enough, by Don Bosch's first hit of the year.

Houston had almost as much fun against the Braves, collecting 15 hits—three each and three RBI apiece by ex-Braves Denis Menke and Lee Thomas.

Aspromonte also had three runs batted in and two of them came in a most interesting fashion.

The bases were loaded in the eighth inning when Aspro lined to center. Rusty Staub at third and Lee Thomas at second took off but Jim Wynn, thinking the ball would be caught, held up at first.

Felipe Alou trapped the ball and Staub and Thomas scored but Wynn was cut down at second for the out.

Texan Only Stroke Off at Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Eldridge Miles is a versatile Texan who has fallen in love with the pro golf tour at the age of 34. Miles is determined to succeed despite his late start. "I felt I just had to go on the tour," the former Dallas school teacher and stock broker said after a three-under-par 69 in the first round of the Atlanta Classic Golf Tournament Thursday. That left him only a stroke off the lead taken by lanky Tom Weiskopf.

Miles' best showing has been a tie for ninth, and he has collected about $4,000 in tournament checks.

The lack of tour experience didn't hurt him on the tough Atlanta Country Club course, however, because he was one of only 16 players to break par of 72.

Only Weiskopf—who has won $85,000 already this year—beat him. Jack Nicklaus, Tommy Aaron, Ray Floyd, Chris Blocker, Bert Yancey and Don January matched Miles' 69.

Among those overshadowed by the personable Texan were Arnold Palmer, 76, defending champion Bob Charles, 75; Gary Player, 73; Doug Sanders, 75; Masters champion Bob Galt, 77, and Gay Brewer, 72.

Scene Was a Picnic in a Pigsty

By CARL C. CRAFT
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—It was a picnic in a pigsty. Although several inches of infield mud spoiled the traditional Memorial Day picnic grounds and parking lot for most of the 250,000 persons, there were those who just couldn't resist the challenge.

The infield on 500-mile race day at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway was a massive mud-pie—with rain on 23 days in May.

Panic was dropping a car key. Happiness was burying a chicken bone with the press of a foot. Those who inhabited the infield took a bit of Indianapolis home with them.

Officials estimated the automobile population in the infield at one-third of normal—down to 7,000, and those slithered haphazardly into position.

Fans who traditionally spread their blankets and unpack picnic lunches had to bring along boards or face the prospect of sinking in the ooze. Some youngsters played touch football in the mire.

The mud even kept the unusual brawl to a minimum. A special trouble detail of state troopers was never needed.

Perhaps it was just as well. The special bus brought to the track to haul prisoners to jail each year was stuck in the mud, too.

Campers Use Repellents To Avoid Chigger Bites

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

What started out to be a delightful camping trip is often spoiled by red mites or chiggers. These insect larvae are found in grassy fields, berry patches, city parks and damp woods. They will take up temporary residence with great impartiality on birds, animals, reptiles or man. Seeking locations where the skin is most tender, they often wind up where the clothing is tight—under garters, belts, shoe tops, girdles or bras.

Once there, they bite and cause red welts that burn and itch and sometimes keep one awake most of the night. Scratching is hard to avoid but may lead to infected sores that will require antiseptics and sterile dressings. All authorities agree that the first line of business after exposure to chiggers is to take a bath with soap and hot water and follow this with an ointment that contains 10 per cent sulfur and 1 per cent phenol in a greaseless base.

Much of this can be avoided through the judicious use of repellents, such as diethyltoluamide, Indalone, dimethyl carbate and benzyl benzoate. When you buy a repellent, you should check the label to make sure it contains one or more of these ingredients. It is not necessary to saturate your garments with the repellent. Pour a little on your hands, rub them together, then rub them lightly on the places where the bites are most likely to occur—especially around all openings, such as shirt cuffs, trouser cuffs, the hem of a dress, the tops of socks, and the inner side of the neckband.

If a spray is used, apply it to these same areas. To be a successful camper, you've got to be smarter than the chiggers.

Q—What is the cause of Iceland disease? What are the symptoms, duration and treatment?

A—This disease, also known as benign myalgic encephalomyelitis and epidemic neuro-miasthenia, is believed to be caused by an as yet unidentified virus. It is characterized by fatigue, weakness, a low fever, nausea, headache, generalized aching pains, emotional instability, depression and mental confusion. This disease may persist with fluctuating severity for seven months or even longer, but it is never fatal. Since there is no specific treatment, efforts are aimed at relieving the symptoms.

| Opening lead—▲ Q | | | |

If you like to overbid, go right ahead provided you restrict your overbidding to good hands and have learned to play your dummies resourcefully.

Midge (Mrs. Sewall) Cutler of Dallas followed these precepts with today's hand. Her seven clubs was quite an over-bid but she had become unduly encouraged when her partner had first bid diamonds and then followed with spades.

Midge did have a good hand but when she looked over dummy she didn't like what she saw. She had no chance to make seven unless the diamond finesse worked. On the other hand, if it did work she apparently was one trick short unless the king of diamonds would drop doubton or unless a squeeze could develop.

There was no reason to cross the squeeze bridge until she got to it. In the meanwhile Midge started by drawing trumps with three leads and discarding one heart from dummy on the third trump.

She had decided that if there were a squeeze it would be in spades and diamonds. Next she took the diamond finesse.
It worked and business was looking up.

She cashed dummy's remaining high spade and ruffed
a spade in her own hand.
When East dropped the nine things began to look as if West had started with five spades.
If that were so the squeeze was there. Midge led a heart to dummy's king and a second heart back to her ace. Then she played out her last two trumps.

West was able to jettison a heart on the first of these trumps. On the second he had to let a diamond go in order to keep his high spade. A diamond to the ace dropped West's king and the jack of diamonds was the 13th trick.

What do you do now?
A—There may well be a slam but you have a minimum opening and should pass. Be satisfied to take the sure heart game.

HOW MUCH

— Am I Really Worth? Exactly what do I weigh? Am I heavier than my money, or, is it getting the best of me? The all-important question is — when God puts me on the balances — will the weight hand deceive Him? If all a man has to offer the world is his body created in God's image — his chemical composition — his dead weight... then that man is of little value to himself, to humanity, to God. Mister, don't try to analyze your worth by pointing to the pile of silver you control. No one grows bigger when he says "no" to the varied opportunities he has to serve God. Far better to say, "silver and gold have I none," if I am given to serving God, helping the lost to find their way to a place of worship... to His church.

You In The Church

The Church In You — form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

Do unto others as you would have others do unto you.

— THE GOLDEN RULE

If you have faith
like a mustard seed...
nothing will be impossible to you.

Rain Makes Mudhole of Shantytown

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Near-steady rain for two weeks has transformed the Poor People's Campaign shantytown into a 15-acre mudhole but the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy says the weather won't stop the demonstrations.

The rain fell again Thursday but Abernathy, campaign leader and president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told newsmen: "I'm sure it will clear up. It can't get much worse."

He vowed the demonstrators will stay in Washington until Congress meets their demands for massive programs to help the poor.

Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. visited the encampment for the first time.

The rain has made one great mudhole of Resurrection City, the shanties near the Lincoln Memorial serving as temporary home for some 2,000 demonstrators.

But Abernathy said there are no plans to evacuate and added that now that his own A-frame shelter is ready, he and his wife will move in today.

The rain reached cloudburst proportions, with high winds, thunder and lightning as a Memorial Day concert at the Lincoln Memorial got under way in memory of King, who conceived the campaign.

The concert was called off as the audience scurried for cover. Many huddled at the base of the statue of the brooding Lincoln.

Mrs. King spoke briefly to the crowd in front of the memorial, site of her assassinated husband's 1963 civil rights speech, "I Have A Dream," the deluge broke during Abernathy's opening prayer.

But the concert will be held tonight in nearby Constitution Hall. She will narrate Aaron Copland's "Lincoln Portrait."

Mrs. King, dressed in black, visited Resurrection City, chatted with demonstrators and addressed a rally in one of the big tents. The mud reached her ankles.

Before the storm, Abernathy led about 1,000 demonstrators on a quick march up the Mall to the Agriculture Department, a consistent target of protests over food distribution policies for the nation's poor. They circled the building and went back to camp.

Abernathy reiterated the demonstrators do not plan to leave the encampment on June 16, expiration date of their federal permit.

The House Public Works Committee has approved a measure to ban any overnight camping on federal or District of Columbia property in the city or extending any permits for such permission. The bill has not been put to a vote in either House or Senate, however.

"We marched today to remind the nation and the government we will not give up," Abernathy said. "The Congress and the Supreme Court are in recess but the poor are never in recess."

"We are not going to leave until we get more concrete gains from the Congress."

Marketing Men Focus on Youth

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Middle-age marketing men are trying today, often with limited success, to focus on what is called the youth market, where fashions are set and many billions of dollars are spent.

The youth market is that imprecise area anywhere from 8 to 38, although generally it is limited to those under 25.

It was the early end of this range that launched the Beatles, wild hairdos and miniskirts. But it is the latter end that finds it difficult to understand. And that's the age of many marketing men.

These marketing men cannot ignore the strange and sometimes unintelligible echos from this age, for its inhabitants influence or even dictate to much of the American economy. Estimates now place at 50 per cent or more the number of Americans under 25. They have power.

As an example, firms that survey this market claim it accounts for more than 60 per cent of movie audiences, and buys more than 55 per cent of records, record players and cameras. They claim also that more than 60 per cent of all first-time brides are teen-agers.

Says Eugene Gilbert of the Gilbert Research Institute: "Any advertiser who touches the responsive chord in youth can generally count on the parent to finally succumb to purchase."

A recent issue of the Majority Report told marketing and ad men that in their attempts to reach youngsters their pitch ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous, "from subtly to questionable taste."

Launchers of Missiles Get Education

By DOUGLAS KIENITZ

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) —

The men who are prepared to launch the nation's Minuteman missiles at a second's notice have a lot of time on their hands during a 24-hour shift in a silo, 50 feet underground and miles from their missile.

But do they waste it? Well about 150 officers and men at Warren Air Force Base are working toward college degrees as they sit and wait for an order they hope never comes.

Their military job is simple. Should the word be given, they would press the button to launch the missiles toward predetermined targets in various sectors of the world.

Two men at a time pull 24-hour stints in their underground homes, with one constantly monitoring the intricate apparatus and both participating in drills held continually to keep the operation alert. But time is also available for study and about 150 are currently enrolled in the Air Force Institute of Technology education program — AFIT.

Such a program guarantees a bachelor's degree for the officers who entered the military under cadet programs. It appears to be a successful venture, both for the men involved and the Air Force. Professors from the University of Wyoming in Laramie conduct classes on the average of three times every two weeks at Warren AFB, with the remainder of the time devoted to private study which is usually done in the launch facility.

After enough college credit hours have been obtained to bring the student within one year of graduation, the final time must be spent on a college campus. The largest number plan to continue their schooling at the University of Wyoming, but several will go to San Diego State in California and the University of Oklahoma.

The most common courses being studied are general engineering, electrical engineering, mathematics and industrial management.

Means Committee, predicts the President's move assures quick passage for the tax bill when it comes up for House vote June 12.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford seemed to agree.

"I am very pleased that the President agrees a reduction of this magnitude is a good compromise with his 10 per cent tax increase," Ford said.

The Senate already has passed a bill packaging the President's tax bill with a $6 billion spending cut.

The presidential news conference also produced sobering reports about more heavy fighting ahead in Vietnam, along with continued propaganda, infiltration and terror by the North Vietnamese and no substantive progress so far at the Paris peace talks.

The President, in Texas for the holiday weekend, promised to continue to explore every avenue toward a just and honorable peace.

"If Hanoi will take responsive action," he said, "we are ready to go far and fast with them, and with others, to reduce the violence and build a stable peace in Southeast Asia."

The President shared his nationally televised and broadcast news conference with Gen. Wil-

Westmoreland, summing up a report he made to the President, declared the North Vietnamese are waging a worldwide propaganda campaign aimed at making the United States and the world conclude it is futile to strive for a free and independent South Vietnam.

A stumbling block at the Paris talks has been the refusal of North Vietnam to admit the presence of its forces in the South.

Westmoreland, however, reported increasing deployment of men from the North—estimating approximately 90,000 North Vietnamese soldiers are in the South "with more arriving every day."

On the domestic front, the President kept his aides busy over the holiday weekend working on a special message he hopes to send to Congress next week carrying out his promise to urge adoption of a constitutional amendment to lower the voting age from 21 to 18.

If Congress passes such a measure it will be sent on for ratification by three-fourths of the 50 states. Up to now, the idea has not been too popular in some states.

An excellent formula for car buying as well as car building. One of the many satisfactions inherent in Lincoln Continental ownership is the owner's knowledge that he has made an investment of lasting value. This satisfaction has become inherent because Continental designers and engineers are constantly striving for perfection. Each year, they start with the finest car made in America; they refine it, improve it, give it over 2000 manufacturing checks, then test it again, until it's a perfectionist's delight.

This year's Sedan and Coupé follow in the Continental tradition. No change has been made for the sake of change.

The classic Continental look continues, but with such styling refinements as wraparound parking lights and taillights, a smoother shifting transmission and a new, more formal roof line for the Coupé.

Continental interiors are new for 1968, including an all-new instrument panel, and reflect the careful attention to detail that will earn the admiration and respect of the most discerning luxury car buyer. Everywhere, you detect the craftsman's touch. It comes as no surprise that Continental has served as the fine-car standard for many years.

Let us arrange a personal demonstration for you, during which you may become acquainted with the lasting pleasure and prestige awaiting you in the 1968 Lincoln Continental Sedan or Coupé.

People Will Judge
The Crueltest Hoax
He Won't Quit

The second special session of the Arkansas General Assembly adjourned Thursday on the same discordant note with which it started—and nothing accomplished.

Governor Rockefeller was irate, the legislators sarcastic. The governor, of course, is Republican, and the legislature Democratic. This may explain, but it doesn't excuse.

If the affairs of state government are such that a special session is required—and this was the second "special"—then it's mandatory that politics be buried long enough to get something constructive done. But the entire session was embroiled in politics and produced nothing of value.

It is not our purpose to pass judgment. That's for the people. They elected both the Republican governor and the Democratic legislature. But history shows that in an impasse like this the people very often sympathize with a lone governor rather than the 100-odd who compose the legislature.

The Navy now thinks the purported signal bearing the radio code name for Scorpion was a hoax, and has called off the special search based on that signal's location.

If it's a hoax it passeth human understanding that a fellow human being would act so cruelly against the families of the 99 men aboard the missing submarine.

If France's Communists expected to present a detacto revolutionary government with the hope that Gen. Charles de Gaulle would simply call it quits, they got an unpleasant surprise yesterday. The crusty old war-time leader returned suddenly to Paris and shouted "No!"

What happens now is up to the French people. But an educated guess would go something like this: Communists are no different in France, everywhere history shows the Communists operate from a popular base that is a relatively small minority of a country's voting population—and we must presume that this holds true also in France, despite the noise and confusion of a nationwide strike.

Therefore, with de Gaulle standing pat, there will be a nation-wide election—with the probability the people as a whole will support him.

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Legislature ended its second special session of 1968 and went home Thursday, leaving Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller nothing in the way of new taxes and a questionable tool for solving the state's fiscal problems.

In the confusion of the final day, the Senate came within six votes of passing a $4,750,000 tax bill, but the measure did not create much excitement because it was doomed to defeat in the House.

All Rockefeller got out of nine days of legislative activity was an omnibus fund transfer bill which, he said, must be studied before he can determine whether he will veto it.

The bill radds the general budget revolving fund, generally known as the cushion fund, to give $2.3 million to public schools and $2 million to higher education. It also gives $700,000 from the governor's contingency fund to the prisons.

The bill would reduce the cushion fund to $7 million, a figure which fiscal experts regard as dangerously low.

The Senate stayed off an effort by the House to lift another $1.5 million from the cushion fund for the Welfare Department by refusing to concur in a House amendment to a Senate bill.

The bill now in the governor's hands would provide money for a $500 pay raise for teachers in the second year of the biennium and give the institutions of higher learning the money they say they must have to maintain their present level of operation.

No additional money was provided for welfare and Rockefeller, rebuking legislators at a news conference after the session ended, said he would have given welfare a higher priority than the colleges.

"This legislature has been as political as possible and has evidenced an indifference to the needs and wishes of our people that is almost impossible to believe."

Feels That Calendar Should Be Placed by the Clock at Bedside

By JOY STILEY
NEW YORK (AP) — Life might be simpler if I kept a calendar, as well as a clock, on my bedside table.

When the alarm goes off I make a groggy effort to struggle awake and face the day. It would help, though, to know just what day it is I'm facing.

I can usually tell what season it is by noting whether the fan or the electric blanket is turned on, but aside from that, I haven't the slightest notion if it's Monday or Friday or points between.

Not only do I not know when and where I am, but when I grope my way toward reality I often don't even know who I am. I haven't any hope of living through the day, but on the vague chance that I might make it I mutter to myself through sleep-swollen lips: "If I survive until tonight I am going to get to bed early tonight, no matter what."

The fact that I made this same vow the day before and the day before that escapes my slumber-clouded mind.

There's always the comforting thought that on weekends I can sleep late, and I wrap that promise around me like a warm blanket in the chill moments of awakening.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Arrests in Louisville's West End climbed to more than 400 today as police and volunteer Negro marshals tried to cope with scattered looting and isolated incidents of sniping.

Police, trying to work without the help of National Guardsmen, arrested about 100 persons, including 20 juveniles, in the predominantly Negro section during a nine-hour period ending at midnight Thursday.

Most were charged with disorderly conduct or breach of peace.

Two leaders of the Black Unity League of Kentucky, a militant group composed of teenagers and young adults, were among seven arrested when police stopped a seven-car caravan heading from the West End into the east section of the city.

Both men, Sam Hawkins, 25, and Robert Sims, 21, were charged with breach of peace.

The trouble during the fourth consecutive night of racial disorder in the city came despite a plea for calm from the mother of a teen-ager killed in the violence.

Louann Man Saves Life of Another

CAMDEN, Ark. (AP) — Harold Bratton, 62, of Louann (Ouachita County) was credited Thursday with saving the life of W. P. Gilkey, 35, of Norphlet (Union County).

Gilkey told authorities that he swerved his truck off a county road about three miles southwest of Louann in an effort to miss a deer.

He said the truck burst into flames and that he was unable to get out because his back was injured.

Then Bratton happened to pass by, saw the burning truck and pulled Gilkey from it.

Gilkey was listed in good condition at an El Dorado hospital.

Asks Hanoi to End Peace Propaganda

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
PARIS (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators clashed today over ways of de-escalating the war in Vietnam but failed again to make any progress toward breaking their deadlock.

North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy rejected all U.S. proposals for joint action to curb the conflict. He said the United States is the "aggressor" in Vietnam and must end the bombing and other military operations against the North without reciprocity.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman made a new appeal to Thuy to take a different tack and told him President Johnson is prepared "to go far and fast" in a common search for peace.

The meeting lasted three hours and 45 minutes and ended with an agreement to meet again next Wednesday.

Harriman, returning to the U.S. Embassy after the session, said he felt "public opinion in the world will be brought to bear so that we can bring about a de-escalation of the war, as President (Johnson) said, and the laying of a sound foundation for peace in Southeast Asia."

Thuy told Harriman, "Our position is clear as day. The United States is carrying out a war of aggression against our fatherland in both the North and South zones."

"If the United States wants peace, let it halt its aggression and peace will return immediately."

"If the United States continues its war we will continue our resistance until total victory."

U.S. officials say privately that they hope the impasse can be broken eventually.

Group Plans Walkout on Humphrey

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A faculty member at the University of Arkansas said Thursday that a group plans to walk out of the school's commencement exercise Saturday when an honorary doctor's degree is conferred on Vice President Hubert Humphrey.

He said they would be acting as individuals and not as members of any group.

Humphrey is scheduled to make the commencement address at the university at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Mills Thinks Tax Will Pass Quickly Now

KENSETT, Ark. (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., predicted from his home here Thursday that President Johnson's 10 per cent income tax surcharge will be passed June 12.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said that is the day the committee plans to take up the tax bill. The committee has kept the tax proposal bottled up in a demand for a reduction of a $6 billion cut in spending assured quick passage of the tax.

Mills also predicted passage of the spending and appropriation limitation package contained in a House-Senate conference committee report. He said all the limitations amounted to reductions in excess of the revenue that would be raised by the surtax, which is expected to bring in $9.8 billion annually.

"This is the kind of expenditure control that the Ways and Means Committee was seeking all along," Mills said.

"It's comforting that the President has accepted the work of the conferees," Mills said. "All of us agree that a $30 billion deficit would be devastating and that a $10 billion deficit would be manageable."

DeGaulle's Appeal for Support Signals Mass Protest Demonstration

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle's firm stand in the French strike crisis stirred up a modest back-to-work movement today. And union leaders said they were ready to reopen talks on wage hikes for still idle millions.

De Gaulle's appeal for support, coupled with his dissolution of the National Assembly and institution of temporary monetary controls to protect the value of the franc, sent hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen marching through Paris Thursday night in a massive demonstration in his behalf.

It was too early to tell the ultimate outcome, but lines were drawn after two weeks of chaos and tensions appeared eased.

The 77-year-old chief of state, rejecting leftist calls for his resignation, said Thursday he would remain in office to combat an attempt by "totalitarian communism" to take over the strikebound nation. Georges Pompidou, his executive officer as head of the government, stayed on in the premiership.

Georges Seguy, secretary-general of the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor, told a news conference he was not opposed to restarting negotiations if government and industrial leaders showed signs of making satisfactory concessions. No mention was made of any political conditions.

Seguy and other labor leaders worked out an agreement with Pompidou and industry chiefs early Monday that called for a 10 per cent wage increase during the year and other benefits.

But the workers, who had started the massive strikes without any call from the top, refused to accept the settlement. They wanted more money and other concessions.

Fight Rages on 2 Sides of Saigon

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops pressed hard on two sides of Saigon today in a new outburst of fighting in the capital, as other enemy forces trained big Russian guns on allied bases in the central highlands.

Enemy pressure was maintained as North Vietnamese and U.S. negotiators prepared to hold their sixth session of cease-fire talks in Paris.

In a news conference today the second-highest Viet Cong ever to defect, Col. Phan Mau, 38, said the Communist strategy was to keep up attacks on South Vietnamese cities to improve the bargaining position in Paris.

South Vietnamese bombers plastered Viet Cong troops trying to push into the city from the northeast. Aerial observers estimated the strikes killed as many as 200 enemy troops, but the figure was not confirmed by body counts.

More serious than the guerrilla surge from the northeast, however, was the infiltration of small squads of Viet Cong into Cholon, the Chinese quarter in Saigon's western sector.

Earlier South Vietnamese marines and rangers thought they had contained the Viet Cong outside the capital's western outskirts. After five days of skirmishing near the U.S. satellite communications station in Phu Lam, the government troops appeared to have the situation in hand. But the infiltrators moved in, and several hundred frightened refugees streamed from their homes through a hail of crossfire. Some were wounded.

On the northeastern edge of Saigon, meanwhile, infiltrators slammed bazooka-type rockets and grenades into a U.S. motor pool and a National Police center. Eleven Americans and six government policemen were wounded, but there were estimates of 30 to 40 Viet Cong killed. One U.S. Army gunship helicopter was shot down as it worked against the Viet Cong.

From the central highlands came reports that enemy troops had hauled 100mm Soviet-made artillery down the Ho Chi Minh trail into Laos and Cambodia, and were blasting allied bases from a range of possibly 13 miles.

The base is less than 300 miles from Saigon and one U.S. source commented: "That's the farthest south we've ever received artillery fire."

Fourth Infantry troops turned back one enemy ground assault with heavy artillery fire 11 miles west of Dak To, and B52 bombers dropped nearly 1,000 tons of bombs northeast of Dak To and west of Kontum in efforts to chop up some 15,000 enemy troops massing in the highlands.
